About me

I'm a highly creative and diligent IT student in my third year, driven by an insatiable desire to expand my skill set and build valuable connections. My journey began in high school when I independently delved into the world of C# and object-oriented programming, using the knowledge gained to develop personal mini-projects.

I'm recognized for my unwavering integrity and reliability, and I eagerly seek opportunities to collaborate within a welcoming, intellectually stimulating team. I thrive under pressure, meeting challenges with a composed demeanor and quick problem-solving skills.

My passion for computer science is unwavering, and my goal is to secure a career in this field. I am poised to bring my expertise, dedication, and enthusiasm to any role in the computer science domain.
